Mr. Lecat said France would obviously examine the implica-tions of its arms deals in the Middle East if It became clear that a merger also involved the fusion of the armed forces.

France has maintained an embargo on arms supplies to Egypt, Israel, Jordan and Syria since the six-day Mideast war of 1967.

Mr. Lecat said there were a oumber of guarantee clauses in sales contracts. The government already has stated that these clauses would prevent arms reach-ing what France calls the "battiefield" countries.

The clauses say France would stop deliveries of weapons and spare parts if the arms were handed over or found their way to a third country, particularly if embargo.

At least eight government soldiers were killed and 28 wounded. while the enemy lost six dead, Col Hien said.

North Vietnamese guns near the city have been the target of repeated attacks by U. S. jets and naval gunfire. Two heavy guns eight miles southwest of Quang Tri were reported silenced yesterday and the destroyer Rupertus was said to have blasted an artillery position two miles northwest of the city.

More enemy guns are reported to be heading for the battlefield. The Air Force said it had damaged or destroyed four of them near the North Vietnamese city of Quang Khe, 65 miles north of the Demilitarized Zone,

The enemy artillery concentration around the provincial capital is described by U.S. advisers as one of the heaviest of the war and is said to have been a majo: factor in holding off government troops.

The most fcared North Vietnamese weapon is the Sovietmade 130-mm gun, which has a 17-mile range and fires a shell that destroys all but the deepest bunkers. The Juns are hidden in the jungled hills that form a western crescent at Quaog Tri and only a direct hit from the air will knock them out.

More than 50 B-52 bombers struck at enemy positions near the city, the U.S. command reported. The bombers also hit targets elsewhere in North and South Vietnam. Air Force and Navy planes flew > more than 260 strikes against targets in the North, including bridges, fuel installations, railroads, warehouses, trucks, barges and missile launchers, the command added. On the southern front, government troops continued their

Approval Expected

Sir Kelth's ministry was responsible for drawing up the changes, which appeared in a White Paper.

The proposals, which are expected to be approved by Parliament, are aimed mainly at decentralization of the vast Health Service, assuring that regional and local authorities have a stronger voice in policy and "The public will have a vigorous local voice in the remodeled NHS." Sir Keith said. A major recommendation in White Paper-an official statement of government policy—is the appointment of a Health Ombudsman to deaf with patients' specific allegations of poor treatment.

Fourleen new regional health authorities would be created, and under them would be 90 new area health authorities, all meant to streamline the NHS administration. On a local level, Community Health Councils would be appointed to represent districts with populations of 200,000 to "The Community Health Councils will be entirely devoted to representing the patients' interest and would be able to bring tremendous pressure on neglected areas of community health," Sir Keith said. He added that the councils would be able "to demand entry to hospitals and carry out investigations."

All of the recommendations were designed to answer criticisms leveled at the NHS that it has become in many fustances a corporate body insensitive to individual needs.

While each employee contributes about 20 cents from his weekly pay to the Health Service. it is mainly financed from gencral taxation. Last year it cost about $4.4 billion to run the NHS, or about 12.5 percent of the national hudget.

PARIS, Aug. 2 (Reuters).— France confirmed today that air and sea security measures round its nuclear test site at Mururos. Atoli, in the South Pacific, have been lifted, but declined to say year's controversial test series has

In Geneva, meanwhile, 13 countries sponsored a resolution urging that there be no further nuclear weapons tests of the sort likely to contaminate marine en-several countries made it clear that the resolution referred specifically to the recent French nuclear tests.

Neither France nor China has signed the 1963 partial nuclear test ban treaty, which forbids all tests except those staged underground. Both countries have frequently conducted tests in the atmosphere since that date. Because of the international furor over the tests, there was speculation that France might switch from atmospheric to un-derground explosions—possibly in cooperation with the United States.

A Defense Ministry spokesman said he had no comment on rumors about future French underground tests on U.S. territory. The rumors developed after Defense Minister Michel Debre's visit to Washington last month.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The high gear in late May an United States is engaged in a major propaganda campaign designed to weaken North Vietnam's morale and stir up trouble at home for the Hanoi regime. It was learned yesterday that the White House ordered the new propaganda effort shortly after North Vietnam launched its mas-sive invasion of South Vietnam

Amendment Freed by Rules Panel

House Gets Anti-Busing Measure agreed on a $30.5-billion spending

By Richard L. Lyons and Eric Wentworth

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2 (WP). -A constitutional amendment forbidding busing of students to achieve racial balance was sent to the House by its Rules Committee yesterday, but chances of congressional approval this year were considered alim. By a vote of 9 to 6, the Rules Committee took the unusual action of prying the measure away from the Judiciary Committee, which has sat on it for more than a year, and sending it to the House floor for action, probably within two weeks. Only twice before in 10 years has the Rules Committee used its powers to reach into a legislative committee and snatch away a bill for floor action; once it produced legislation, the other time it failed. The proposed amendment states: "No public school student shall, because of his race, creed or color, be assigned to or reomired to attend a particular school," This reads like a pro-civil-rights statement. But its purpose is to prevent busing for racial balance, although its sponsors insist that they support quality education for all and that the amendment is not intended to perpetuate segregation. There has been increased court-ordered ghetto schools, for the stated purpose of improving the quality of their education.

Celler Sees Failure Rep. Emanuel Celler, D., N.Y., chairman of the Judiciary Committee, called the Rules Committee action "most ill-advised". and predicted that the proposal would fail to receive the twothirds vote necessary in each house of Congress before it can be submitted to the states for ratification by three-fourths of the legislatures.

"I doubt very much that it will pass the House, and if it does, it certainly won't pass the Senate," Rep. Celler said. He termed busing a transitory issue, not one of broad principle "suited to be included in the Constitution."

It would require only a majority vote to approve the resolution putting the matter before the The Rules Committee also voted, 11 to 4, to defer action until next Tuesday on a proposal to take away from Rep. Celler's committee President Nixon's bill barring further court busing orders until next July 1. This was viewed as a warning to the House Education and Labor Committee that it had better finish work by next week on another presidential bill, one setting guidelines to limit busing. The administration preferred action on the moratorium bill instead of the constitutional amendment, on grounds that the statute could take effect quicker. Action on the guidelines bill would make the moratorium unnecessary, but the ad is not sure the former bill can be enacted this year. In other congressional action

 Minimum wage legislation suffered a setback as the House, trying to uphold its less liberal version, refused, 198 to 190, to send the bill to conference with the Senate. Conservatives con-tended that a majority of House conferees to be named by Speaker Carl Albert, D., Okla., were opposed to the House bill, which was a Republican substitute, and would accept the more liberal Senate provisions. They are pressing Rep. Albert to appoint conferees who would fight hard for the House position.

Bremer Called Schizophrenic Set to Kill Nixon or Wallace

UPPER MARLBORO, Md., Aug. 2 (AP).—A defense psychiatrist described Arthur H. Bremer today as a schizophrenic whose decision to assessinate either President Nixon or Alabama Goy. George C. Wallace temporarily resolved the personal conflicts which had been with him most of his life. Dr. Eugene B. Brody, a Baltimore psychlatrist whose creden-tials took 30 minutes to recite in Circuit Court, said he was convinced that Bremer was suffering from schizophrenia on May 15, the day Gov. Wallace and three other persons were wounded in a voiley of gunfire at a Laurei, Md. shopping center's parking lot during a campaign rally. "Mr. Bremer, in my opinion, lacked totally the capacity to appreciate the criminality of his conduct." Dr. Brody told a jury of six men and six women as the defense opened its case in Bremer's trial on state charges. The 21-year-old former janitor and busboy from Milwaukee has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity to 17 counts stemming from the May 15 shootings.

Prosecution Closes Case Before closing its case yesterday, the prosecution sought to prove Bremer's sanity.

Dr. Brody, who interviewed Bremer at a state hospital in July, went through a lengthy analysis of his mental condition. He based the analysis on his meeting with the defendant, his conversations with Bremer's father and mother and his reading of a personal diary taken from Bremer's car.

The psychiatrist said the diary indicated Bremer made up his mind in early March to assas-sinate either Mr. Nixon or Gov. "Making the decision had the effect of temporarily resolving his conflict," Dr. Brody said. Concerning Bremer's actions over the next two months, Dr. Brody said that much of what Bremer did appeared to be carefully planned, but that "on closer inspection it was impulsive." Attention to Detail He said that at times the defendant paid meticulous attention to detail, such as driving his antomobile through a car wash before crossing the Canadian border so that guard dogs could not smell gunpowder. But on the other hand, Dr.

Brody said, Bremer was often grossly negligent to the point where he appeared to be asking for discovery and arrest. He said, for example, that Bremer drovs up and down rural roads for several hours near a Canadian airport where President Nixon was scheduled to arrive, Dr. Brody told the jury that Bremer "fantasized that when he fired his gun at President Nixon or Gov. Wallace, he would cry out, 'A penny for your thoughts!' "He viewed other people as enemies or people to be used, exploited or obliterated without regard to their personal feelings." the doctor said.

Ulster and the Terrorists and the indiscriminate bombings in Northern Ireland illustrate the point. The strange dark power to end other people's lives hecomes addictive. Certainly it becomes increasingly difficult to identify any rational purpose in the pattern of the slaughter being carried out by the Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army.

The IRA is sustained among some of the Catholic population by the myth that it is fighting to free Northern Ireland from the British soldiers. But the victims of the IRA's hombs are, overwhelmingly. Irish civilians, The British government is exceedingly anxlous to negotiate a political remedy to the Catholics grievances. It may be that the current bombing is the reaction of the IRA Provisionals' simplistic and fanatic nationalism to the difficulties of arriving at agreement on their side of the table with other Irishmen and other Catholics. The sharpest threat to the Provisionals' status now is the grass-roots peace movement that has sprung up among Catholics in Northern Ireland. The current bombings could be calculated to provoke a violent response by British soldiers or Protestant irregulars, in order to unite Catholic civilians again behind the most extreme elements in the IRA. It is also possible that the Provisionals wish to deliver the message to Catholic neighborhoods that it is very dangerous to oppose the bombers. The bombs that killed five people, including a 9-year-old gir!, the other morning had heen deliberately set in the streets of a predominantly Catholic village.

When the British government took over the direct administration of Northern Ireland last March, it immediately began to work toward a series of bargains and compromises with the Catholic population. The Terrorism tends to corrupt the terrorists. British proconsul. Mr. Whitelaw, first announced that suspected IRA men, held without trial, would be released as the level of violence fell. He then began to move toward more substantial political reforms. and the response was the peace movement. The movement in turn induced the IRA's more sophisticated Official wing to announce a cease-fire. The Provisionals joined the cease-fire briefly, but in a matter of days slid back to bombing.

> As long as the fighting seemed to be slacking off, the British could tolerate the Catholie no-go areas, ethnic neighborhoods that have been barricaded to all polics and troops. But with continued bombing, the no-go areas, the obvious bases of the terrorists, became intolerable. That is why Mr. Whitelaw sent troops into them. The IRA's immediate response was more bombing. One effect, certainly, is to undermine those peace-makers like Mr. Wilson, the leader of the Labor party, who have been trying to carry on talks directly with the Provisionals. But the continued slaughter makes it increasingly painful for the political leadera of Northern Ireland's Catholic community to go along with the IRA. Thers are now indications that the Catholic politicians are ready to engage in serious conversations with Mr. Whitelaw. If their constituents begin to see the possibility of an acceptable settlement. the IRA may begin to lose the community support that it crucially requires. The path to peace seems gulte clearly to lie in negotiation with the elected representatives of the Catholics, not with the assassins. The Provisionals want their own way and they are apparently prepared to blow up an unlimited number of innocent Irish men, women and children to get it.

-THE WASHINGTON POST.

U.S. Secretary of Commerce Peterson issued a contradictory set of signals when he arrived in Moscow last week to begin his economic negotiations with Soviet officials. In his formal opening remarks at the airport he quoted an old Russian proverb. "New life, new laws," seemingly implying that a new era in Soviet-American economic relations had begun. But in a press conference immediately afterward he reverted to extreme caution and sought to discourage any hopes of quick results from his talks.

It seemed Mr. Peterson had come to Moscow expecting hard bargaining, yet with enough hope of progress to encourage Sovlet optimism. For their part, his Soviet hosts displayed a degree of cordiality that indicated Moscow had very high expectations indeed for these talks despite the failure to reach economic agreements during President Nixon's visit to Moscow last May.

This background left the world ill-prepared for Mr. Peterson's key statement at his farewell press conference just before leaving Moscow for Warsaw. If, as the secretary said, it will take high-level decisions to break the Soviet-American deadlock, why was that not apparent earlier? And why did the President encourage optimism by giving Mr. Peterson a personal send-off from the California White House in San Clemente?

The key to these puzzling developments is probably contained in Mr. Peterson's not too veiled hints on departing that there are political preconditions to any major expansion of Sovlet-American trade and any major extension of U.S. credits to the Soviet Union. The chief political precondition, it seems plain, is genuine Soviet aid in ending the Vietnam war. When the Peterson mission reached Moscow, observers noted that he was accompanied by a key member of Henry Kissinger's staff, Helmut Sonnenfeldt, a participant in some of the Kissinger expeditions to Paris for talks with North Vietnam's Le Duc Tho. In short, it is hard to avoid the impression that the Peterson mission was employed by the White House to exert economic pressure on Moscow in connection with Vietnam.

To note this political background is not to deny that there are genuinely difficult economic problems in these Soviet-American negotiations. The joint exploration and development of Siberla's rich resources in which Leonid Brezhnev is so keenly interested will require billions of dollars of investment and a decade or more to reach fruition ouce work is begun. Although Mr. Peterson denied that Vietnam had been discussed, it is self-evident that a quick end to the Vletnam war would make it economically as well as polltically easier to find the needed money. Beyond this, the protracted argument about lend-lease debt settlement revolves in part about the issue of interest rates, a decision which could set an important precedent affecting interest rates on the huge credits Moscow wants later.

The degree of Russian letdown at the disappointing outcome of the trade talks is indicated by reports that, before the Peterson delegation arrived. Soviet lecture audiences were being given the impression that a deal had been virtually reached informally and that the secretary was coming to Moscow essentially to ratify a falt accompli. Any such expectations have now been quashed though Soviet sources in Moscow were trying to put the best face possible on the scanty results of the talks. What remains to be seen is the longer-run Soviet reaction to this disappointment.

Moscow badiy needs and wants American economic aid and trade, but the danger is that it may decide to teach the Nixon administration that the President's concept of "linkage" is a game that two can play.

'Chou En-lai the Victor'

The cult of Mao Tse-tung's personality is disappearing in China. Even more remarkable is the fact that it is Mao himself who is ending it . . . The Chinese are forewarned: Mao's image bas to be shaded off; this will make the finding of a successor easier. But is not the possible successor already here? This ie glaringly evident: the great victor, after five years of internal struggles, is another modest man, Chou En-lai, who not only survives the cultural revolution but now emerges as the winner in the Lin Piao affair. The latest success put to his credit in Peking is not the one he won over Lin Plao. It is even more recent: it is that of having managed to extricate the country smoothly from the post-Lin Plao period by knowing how to handle a situation that was explosive on the domestic, and perbaps international,

The Engleton controversy brought the leaders of the Democratic party back to him again. Meany, Dalcy, Humphrey, Larry O'Brien, Clark Clifford, among many others, urged him privately and independently to change his mind and step into the vicepresidential vacancy.

The argument was obvious. He had a better chance than anybody else of uniting the party and improving its chances of winning in November, or at least of avoiding disaster. There was little doubt that the National Committee would prefer him to change the question, close the any other candidate, and in the door in some careers and open campaign he would have the op-it to others—and sometimes years portunity to dramatize his case

Moreover, the argument continued, even if the campaign failed it would not be blamed on him. And he woold come out of ft with the party in his debt and in an even stronger position to seek the presidency in 1976. George McGovern talked to him again on the plane coming back from the Ellender funeral in Louisiana, but his answer to all entreaties was the same. He had personal reasons, not all of them cornected with Chappaquiddies, for saying no. He would do everything he could to help and suggested Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana as an alternative, But he could not stand and would not be drafted.

There are some leaders of the party, of course, who thought it was a bad idea to approach Kennedy and argued that exchanginghim for Eagleton would merely hand the Republicans a meral case rather than a psychological case. In any event, he is now out of ft. And with Wallace unable to compete with the Republicans for the conservative vote, the President's chances for re-election are obviously enhanced.

Other accidents are affecting the choice of a new vice-presidential candidate. Sen. Fritz Mondale of Minnesota, for example, was very high on Mc-Govern's list, but by an accident of timing, he happens to be up for re-election this November in the Senate, where he is just beginning to make his mark, and. he chose not to be considered as Eagleton's replacement in order to try for another Senate term.

For Muskie lost out in the primaries, not primarily because he wept on television during the primary in New Hampshire, but hecause he tried to unity all elements of his party by taking a middle position. He lost by attempting to lead the forces of the center and when Humphrey got into the race and divided the middle vote, McGovern raced to victory on the left.

If there is any point to this catalogue of accidents it is that the whole temper of elections can change very quickly as a result of events that are totally unpredictable. The Faceless Mass Called Workers

By Milovan Djilas

RELGRADE - Communists true that no country in might have hoped that with Europe has yet come to their coming to power the incompatibilities between them and terests of the working a the working class would cease to exist. For according to Com-munist theory, power should have been only an organ of the working class against conspira-cles and intervention: That organ should immediately begin to wither away and should completely wither sway with the construction of the classiess, socialist society.

But it is as if Communism had jinxed itself: at the very moment when it appears that Communist predictions and ideals are about to be realized, they turn into their own contradic-

Thus, when the Communists me to power, the working class and Communism mutually move apart and become estranged. This happens unevenly and in-

Viewed in perspective, this coincides with the transformation of the party hureaucrace into a privileged, monopolistic stratum. A special élite is created—a "new class." It justifies its activity as the "continuation of the revolution," but its raison d'être is absolute power as the means to industrialization. The revolu-tionary organs, where the voice of the workers was once heard, retain their form but they are now elected and operate under the direct control of the party

The working class self-sacrificingly accepts industrialization and spares neither sweat nor blood in fighting the Fascist conquerors: there the interests of the party hursaucracy and the working class coincide.

Depoliticized Class

For that resem, the purges hurt the working class less than other strata (peasants, intel-ligentsia, bourgeoisie). The buresucracy alienates the working class from politics and transforms it into a faceless labor force without which there can be no industrialization and no industry. Workers are the only stratum which is not "alien" and socially suspect.

Such conditions, in fact, transform the working class into a mass and destroy the tie between the individual and his social community. The worker is thus only a worker, but not a member of his class-if by class we also mean an expression of group aspirations and interests and not only, as the Communist texts say, a specific role in

The interests and aspirations of the class exhaust themselves in party resolutions. And how could it be otherwise when already much earlier "class con-sciousness" has been equated with ideology and the autonomy of the class equated with the activity of party forums?

In truth, that is "society"—at-least in Eastern Europe—since the time of the ideological darkness of Stalin But it is also of awareness of the sper even less to an awareness autoriciny of the working zation

Informal Talk Resumed by 2 Germanys -

BONN, Aug. 2 (AP) - East and West Germany today started their fourth round of preliminary talks on's treaty for normalization of relations. There had been a month's vacation break.

With no nfficial announcement when formal negotiations, which have been delayed, would start, East German State Secretary Michael Kohl met his Bonn counterpart. Egon Bahr, soon after flying in from East Berlin at 1400 GMT.

Chief government spokesman Conrad Ahlers told a news con-ference meanwhile that Chancellor. Willy Brandt's cabinet will assess the talks next Wednesday, at its first meeting following a summer break Observers felt progress mada by then in the preparatory talks will decide whether the cabinet will give the go-shead to Mr. Bahr to open official bargaining with Mr. Kohl.

Peking Report Studied

In another development, Chancellor Brandt's government said today it is carefully studying shadow cabinet foreign minister Gerhard Schroeder's report that Peking wants to normalize relations with Bonn. The regime reiterated that West Germany would establish diplomatic links with any country which desired

Mr. Ahlers made the statement in reply to Mr. Schroeder day announcement; after he returned from a 16-day visit to China, Mr. Schroeder, who heads Bonn's Parliamentary Foreign Affairs Committee, said Peking is ready to exchange ambassadors with no preconditions.

In the East-West German talks, formal negatiations were originally scheduled to open today, but West German hopes for speeds progress toward a basic treaty normalizing relations were dashed after the last round in East Berlin on June 28, when East German Foreign Minister Otto Winzer unexpectedly intervened in the Bahr-Kohl talks.

Though both sides concede much work has already been completed, widely divergent positions on basic issues apparently hardened in recent weeks.

Newspaper reports, which Bonn officials would neither confirm nor deny, said the East Germans presented a nine-point catalogue of demands, including immediate recognition by West Germany and revocation of all laws and court verdicts of pre-World War II Germany.

Peron's Bust Comes Out of Exile To Resume Place in State Salon

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 2 (UPI).—A familiar face has appeared among the marble husts of former presidents in the ceremonial salon of Government House. It is that of Juan D. Peron, ousted by the military in 1955.

Journalists were surprised by the new bust-the old one was smashed along with Mr. Peron's government. The new likeness showed up when relations between the government of Gen. Alejandro Lanusse and Mr. Peron's exile headquarters in Madrid had hit a low point.

Gen. Lanusse said last week that Mr. Peron did not really want to come back to Argentina to run for president in next March's election. Mr. Peron replied that Gen. Lanusse did not really want to allow fair elections and that he jailed those who disagreed with him.

But the bust is there now, in its proper place among the former presidents of Argentins. Mr. Peron, supported by organized labor movements, ruled Argentina from 1945 to 1955.

Inflation and European Families By Clyde H. Farnsworth

DARIS Aug. 2 (NYT), Inflation, which seems to be the inevitable accompaniment of life in a modern industrial society, is changing the habits and attitudes

Strikes in Britain, France, Italy and elsewhere are one sign of the frustrations the working man feels in trying to keep up with the ever-mounting cost of living. In Britain, the industrial strife is on a scale not seen since the 1920s. And Italy is already feeling the tremors heralding the quakes that will come this fall

No issue-whether soccer or Bobby Fischer's chess antics, the topless fad at St. Tropez or new ministers in Paris, Bonn and Rome-can quite compets with the inexorable march of prices as a topic of conversation in the pubs and municipal flats of England, around the wooden kitchen tables of France, in the winehouses of Germany and Austria. in the tulip-decked living rooms of the Netherlands or in the crammed Fiat of a Neapolitan family rolling on the ramp of the ferry to the island of Ischia.

What exactly is happening to rices? How are they affecting the daily lives of Europeans? What are the Europeans doing about them? What are the attitudes of governments and the financial authorities?

Statistics

Here is what the raw statistics show for latest annual inflation rates in some nations: the Netherlands, 8 percent; Switzerland, 6.3 percent; Britain, 6.2 percent; France, 5.4 percent;

The United States has had an experience similar to Europe's. It was inflation, fed by the war Vietnam, that led to the devalnation of the dollar.

Lately, with price controls and dustrial capacity that has ac-companied the American economic pickup, the United States has performed better against inflation than Europe. American inflation is averaging 3 to percent a year against more than 5 percent in most of the European countries. If you mention to Odette

Pavaux, whose husband, Gaston, makes the equivalent of $300 a month at a northeastern Paris sugar refinery, that prices in France are only up by a little more than 5 percent, she laughs. Her bills for gas and electricity from the French state monopolies are up 10 percent in 12 months, but that's nothing compared to what's happening

Mrs. Pavaux, who is 50 years old, lives in a sixth-floor walkup apartment of two roomswithout bath or bathroom-in a Workers' quarter near Paris's north refered station. She has an older married daughter, Gabrielle, a younger daughter, Joselyne, who lives at home, and two grandchildren, Sabine and Cécile.

Johan Smitz, 40, and his wife, Hatty, feel the pressures of in-flation weighing them down pretty heavily across the Channel in the Netherlands, but they seem to take a rosier view of their circonstances than the McMahon, Atkin and Pavaux families.

Part of the explanation may be where they live, an attractive apartment overlooking green spaces dotted with cows and and dikes about a 45minute drive from Amsterdam, where Mr. Smitz works as the chief clerk in a mail room.

Johan and Hatty Smitz say that their standard of living has increased, despite the high cost of living, and make the point that what contributed most was their move three years ago from the inner city of Amsterdam to this

Ali Dokter and her husband, Harm, are not quite so fortunate as Johan and Hatty Smits. He is an unemployed construct

They live on relief, which in the Netherlands means that Harm and Ali collect 160 guilders a week-about $55-in unemployment pay and allowances for the ehildren. Though the rent is only 39 guilders—about $15—a month, there is not much left for other things after inflation bites into those guilders.

Like the Pavaux family in Paris, the Dokters eat less meat. Mrs. Dokter, 28, says she has stopped eating meat entirely.

In the last three years, she says, a pound of yeal, a liter of milk and a loaf of bread have at least doubled in price.

In the last year alone, the price of cheese, which the Dutch make with pride, has doubled. Mrs. Dokter's milkman has told her it is because of a shortage of cows. But official figures show that the Netherlands and other countries in the Common Market have dairy surpluses. West Germany used to be the European model for price stabiliearly 1960s when the country was still being rebuilt from the war's devastation and when a eneration that still remembered the horrendous hyperinflation of the 1920s-when prices changed every day and sometimes every hour-was firmly in political con-

Some of the elements can be identified rather easily. For instance, the influx of dollars into Europe because of the recent monetary turnoil has forced governments to print more marks, more guilders and Belgian francs, thereby causing the money supply to rise faster than the output of goods and services.

This is what the economists "Imported inflation"-imported from the United Statesand it accounts for some of the acrimony felt toward Washington in monetary matters.

Another element is the change in the attitudes of trads unions many countries, which feel that they have a lot of catching up to do. In the earlier postwar period, unions, especially in West Germany, considered it impossible to have reconstruction stability and high wages all at the same time,

So they chose reconstruction and stability and put off all but the most elemental wage demands. May, 1968, when France erupted in a worker-student revolt, was a watershed period, dividing the postwar era from a new era that would be marked by much more labor militancy. The European worker is simply demanding a bigger share in pros-

The tendency in most European governments today is to put the blame for inflation on the workers and unions. But most workers feel that when they demand higher pay they are simply chasing prices.

fore, loath to accept any restraint on wages unless they see accompanying action to curb prices and to check uncarned income from dividends and from real-estate speculation.

Inflation is a sign a society is trying to do more than its resources permit.

Emil van Lennep, secretary general of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, which has been studying the matter intensely for the last year, said in a recent inflation report: "Governments overestimate people's willingness to pay for things the benefits of which go to the community as a whole rather than themselves as individuals." Rinaldo Ossola, deputy governor of the Bank of Italy, confided that "as a central banker I should say that inflation is a vice and noninflation is a virtue-but it is more complicated than that.

He went on to philosophize for a moment: "In conditions of the modern world, inflation is unavoidable to reconcile competing demands. Everyone wants a greater share than he is capable of producing. Everyone wants better hospitals, schools, roads, vacations. Every one wants a bigger

2,100-year-old body found in who died in middle age.

Around the mummified restate of preservation, were accessories including silk fabrics, lacquerware, bamboo and wooden utensils, pottery, grain, food, and especially made funerary objects. The discovery was made in a tomb on the outskirts of Changhsa, the capital of Hunan Province.

Hsinhua, the Chinese news agency, described the finds with uncharacteristic enthusiasm: These are among the most importent and extremely rare relics recently found. They are of great value to studying the history, culture, handicrafts, agriculture and medicine and preservatives of the period."

Japanese experts commenting the report go further and call this the discovery of the century. The corpse and its acleled glimpse into the science, art, technology and handicrafts of the time, they predict.

Heinhue's account says: "Half immersed in reddish fluid, the fairly well preserved corpse is wrapped in 20 silk cloths of various types. The fibers of the subcutaneous loose connective tissue remain distinct and elastic. The femoral artery is similar in color to that of a fresh corpse. An injection of preservatives made the soft tissues swell immediately and then the swelling spread out. It is estimated that the woman died at about the age of 50.° The tomb was 66 feet deep, with six coffins placed one within another. Heaped around the walls and on top of the outermost coffin was a foot or so of charcoal weighing about five tons and scaled by white clay two to four feet thick.

Also unique was the decorated silk on the wooden coffin.

120 Figurines

The funerary pieces included 120 wooden figurines, either dressnainted in different colors, including 26 of a musical and dance etroupe. Other pieces were small lacquered tables, screens, walking sticks, incense bags, dressing cases and long tables piled with food. There were more than 180 nieces of lacquerware and batches of pottery, including caskets, jugster and square vases. Some contained identifiable rice cakes, pickied, vegetables, peaches, peach, arbutus, melons, eggs and rice.

The body is believed to be that of the wife of the first Marquie, Tai. Li Chn-tsang, also known as Li Tsang, who lived about 190's years before Christ. A petty noble who ruled over 700 households, he apparently loved his wife.

Hsinhua saw it another way "The fact that he wasted so much labor and wealth on the funeral of his wife bears witness to the extravagance of the feudal ruling class and its ruthless exploitation, of the laboring class."

In his first on-the-record press conference since taking over from John B. Connally, Mr. Sbnitz attributed skyrocketing gold prices "in this volatile market" to a number of causes, including spec-ulation, a restricted supply, and a growing industrial demand.

The two-tier system was set up in March, 1968, providing that the "official" price of gold would be held at $35 an ounce, and that central banks would not add to the monetary supply of gold, or have dealings with the outside market, which was left to fluctuate in price. It's Holding'

LONDON, Acg. 2 (AP-DJ) — The price of gold continued to mount in European bullion markets today, reaching $70 an ounce before late profit-taking trimmed the price.

Dealers here set the price at the morning fixing at $70 an ounce, np 70 cents from yesterday's official close. The quote stayed at the $70 level at the afternoon fixing. But in late unofficial trading, dealers were quot-ing a range of $69.25 to $70 an

In trading prior to the morning fixing, dealers were quoting a price range of $70.50 to $71.50 an ounce. The early high quotes, however, attracted some sizable profit-taking around midday and the price slipped back to $69 to $69.50 an ounce. The price firmed at the afternoon fixing but again turned down in final unofficial

While stressing the persistency of speculative demand generated apparently by hopes of still higher prices. London dealers pointed out that South Africa's rationing of its production to the free markets has played a big part in the gold price upsurge. "With market supplies quite inadequate to satisfy persistent speculative demand there's only one way prices can go and that's upward," noted one dealer. Even so some dealers are expecting to see more speculative profit taking now that the price has pushed through the $70 mark.

In Zurich, dealers were quoting a closing price range of $69.75-$70.75 an ounce.

4 Firms Seek All Gas Output From Ekofisk

Bargaining Over 'Very High Price'

ESSEN, West Germany, Aug. 2 (AP-DJ), — Ruhrgas, Gaz de France, Distrigat of Belgium and Gasunie of the Netherlands are jointly negotiating to buy all known natural gas deposits of Ekofisk's North Sea concession off the Norwegian coast. The Ekofisk consortium is headed by Phillips Petroleum of the United States. Other members are Petrofina of Belgium. Agip of Italy, and the Freoch-Norwegian Petronord group. Ruhrgas chairman Herbert Schelberger said today the gas companies intend to contract an annual amount of 12 billion cubic meters of natural gas over a 10 to 12-year period, after which the Exofisk find is expected to be exhausted. "I'm optimistic that current negotiations can be successfully concluded by year-end," be said.

Mr. Schelberger said the Ekofisk gas would be transported via a 420-kilometer underwater pipeline to a point along the northern part of the North Sea coast. implying that the terminal will be either in northern Germany or the Netherlands.

It is expected that the gas would begin to flow to Europe in 1975, Mr. Schelberger said. Ruhrgas, he said, intends to contract for 5 billion cubic meters of the total annual amount. The Ekofisk consortium, said, envisages a "very high price" for its gas without naming the price. This, he said, is still a major subject of bargaining.

IBM Hails Its Virtual Storage

Technology as a 'Significant' Step

NEW YORK, Aug. 2 (AP-DJ).—International Business Machines made its long-awaited product announcements today, saying it added virtual storage technology and two new computers to its system-370. IBM, in what it termed a "major redirection" of 370 technology, claimed this was designed to make it easier and more economical for computer users to develop new applications.

Frank T. Cary, president, said the announcements "may ultimately be judged to be among the most significant in the history of our industry."

Virtual memory is a combination of programming and circuitry that makes the computer appear to have a main storage capacity many times larger than its actual capacity. This is done by linking internally less costly disc storage to main storage. Virtual memory's main role is to simplify the job of programmers, one of the most time consuming and costly functions in computer operations. Virtual memory enables the machine to take over many of the automatic carryout operations that programmers formetly were required to write in detailed instructions for encoding in machine language.

To provide virtual storage for system-370, IBM announced new system control programming and circuitry and two new computers—system-370 models 158 and 168—that introduce the most compact storage circuits ever used in IBM computers.

The company also announced that virtual storage is available virtual storage will be scheduled for the second and third quarters of 1973, respectively.

The Secret History of America's First (Intelligence Agency

By R. Harris Smith. Mustrated. University of Cali. 458 pp. $10.95.

Reviewed by Roger Jellinek

IN 1941 a British naval intelligence officer named Ian Fleming recommended to Gen. William (Wild Bill) Domovan that he recruit as American intelligence officers men of "absolute discretion, sobriety, devo-tion to duty, languages, and wide experience." Donovan, a World War I hero and successful Wall Street lawyer, understood the fantasies of writers and presi-dents, and in a memo to President Roosevelt promised an international secret service staffed by young officers who were "cal-culatingly reckless," with "disci-plined daring" and trained for "aggressive action."

The Office of Strategic Services came to include such James Bonds as John Birch, Norman O. Brown, David K.E. Bruce, Dr. Palph J. Bunche, William Bundy, Michael Burke, Julia Child, Clark Clifford, John Kenneth Galbraith, John W. Gardner, Arthur J. Goldberg and Murray Gurfein. There were others-Sterling Hayden, August Heckscher, Roger O Hisman, Philip Horton, H. Stuart Hugbes, Carl Kaysen, Clark M. MacGregor, Herbert Marcuse, Henry Ringling North, Serge Obolensky. And still others: John Oakes, Walt W. Rostow, Elmo Roper, Arthur M. Schlesinger jr. Ralph de Toledano—to name just a few of the hundreds in this book by R. Harris Smith.

Smith, who was in the trade himself, resigning in 1968 after a "very brief, uneventful, and un-distinguished association with the most misunderstood bureaucracy of the American government," the Central Intelligence Agency, now lectures in political science at the University of California's Exten-sion Division. This history of America's first central intelligence agency" is "secret" because Smith was denied access to OSS archives, and so had to rely on the existing literature supplemented by some 200 written and verbal recollections of OSS alumni.

The book is densely packed with the bewildering variety of OSS exploits in World War II: spying, sabotage, propaganda, military training missions, poli-ticking and coordinating resistance groups against the Ger-"Casablanca" caught the mans. Chargers Acquire Eagles' Rossovich San Diego 38 59 .302 21 s snapped a 1-1 tie For Draft Choice

IRVINE Calif., Aug. 2 (AP).-The San Diego Chargers acquired another talented and troublesome player yesterday when it traded for linebacker Tim Rossovich of the Philadelphia Eagles. Late Monday night, just before the National Football League Interconference trading deadline, the Chargers obtained Duane Thomas from the Dallas Cowboys for wide receiver Billy Parks and running back Mike Montgomery. "We had reached the point where we had to do something." said Cowboys' coach Tom Landry. Harland Svare, coach of the Chargers, said he would wait a while for the 25-year-old Thomas to report. "He's probably the best running back since Jimmy Brown," Syare said. Thomas could not be reached

Zwilling, of Austria, for comment. For Rossovich, the Chargers relinquished their No. 1 National Football League choice for 1973 to the Philadelphia Eagles. The 6-foot, 245-pounder, a five-year NFL star from the University of Southern California, had sought a big salary hike and failed to show up at the Eagles' training 1968 after the Astros had drafted him from Jacksonville, a St. Louis farm team in 1965.

Colbert started his record pace in the first inning of the opener when he drilled his 26th homer into the leftfield seats off Brave's pitcher Ron Schueler following walks to Dave Roberts and Larry Sight. He singled home a run 'n the third and then smacked a solo homer into the center-field seats off Mike McQueen in tha seventh.

The Padres jumped to a 2-0 lead in the first inning of the second game on one hit three walks and a pair of Atlanta er-rors. Colbert put them in control in the second with his grand slam off Tom Kelley, a shot over the left-field fence that highlighted a five-run inning.

His 10th and 11th RBI of the night came on a two-run blest over the right field fence off Jim Hardin in the seventh inning. He finished his evening with a two-run shot to left field off Cecil Upshaw in the ninth. Mets 2, 1, Phils 2, 4

Bill Robinson ripped a tie-breaking three-run double with two out in the ninth inning and Steve Carlton hurled his 11th consecutive victory to become the National League's first 16-game winner as Philadelphia beat the Mets 4-1, and gained a splft of their doubleheader in New

Spitz Sets Butterfly Mark in Trials

By George Solomon

CHICAGO, Aug. 2 (WP).-The swimming nuts who gathered here for the U. S. Olympic trials, which began today, were nearly unanimous on one issue. Mark Spitz is the fastest and most controversial swimmer in the country.

And as soon as the trials opened, Spitz shattered the world record for the 200-meter butterfly in a preliminary heat hy winning in 2 minutes 01.87 seconds, bettering the mark of 2:03.3 held by Hans Fassnach of West Germany.

Spitz finished about eight yards ahead of runner-up Bob Alsfielder of Chacinnati, who was timed in 2:04.87. However, the second fastest time was in another heat, 2:03.84 by Robin Backhaus, a high school senior from Redlands, Calif.
Gary Hall, a former Indiana

teammate of Spitz and also a hold-over from the 1968 Olympics at Mexico City, was third with 2:04.4 A cross between Jim Ryun and Bobby Fischer, that's the way some people have described Spliz, who holds world records in the 100and 300 - meter freestyle events and the 100-meter hutterfly and is the Amsteur Athletic Union champ in the 200-meter butterfly. On the deck of the Portage Park Pool here, during a recent workout. Arden Hills, Calif.,

coach Sherm Chavoor held a stopwatch in his right hand as Spitz cut gracefully through the water, his 170 pounds barely "He's a good kid," Chavoor said. "When he first came to prominence five years ago, be was called aloof, arrogant. 'Look, he was a 17-year-old kid," Chavoor sald. "He wanted to be friends with Don Schollander and all those other big studs. They were in college. They didn't want any part of Mark. So he withdrew."

Spitz no longer withdraws. He is 32, a graduate of Indiana who will enter dental school this fall. He has been swimming competitively foc 14 years. When he leaves the pool after his final race at Munich, he will retire from competitive swimming.

"I went to win at Munich then onit." Spitz sald after his work-"I never swam for glory. only the satisfaction of being recognized as the best to the world in a particular event.

"That's the goal of any ath-lete, isn't it," he asked. Spltz does not swim from controversy. He will speak his mind.

African Nations Set to Decide On Rhodesia

YAOUNDE, Cameroon, Aug. 2 UPII.-Sport representatives of African nations will meet Sunday to decide on policy concerning the participation of Rhodesia at the Olympic Games in Munich. the secretary-general of the African Sports Council said today.

Jean-Claude Ganza said a telegram has been sent asking West Germany to annul Rhodesia's invitation to particlpate in the Games until the council could make a final decision.

He said the telegram warned West Germany that African nations might boycott the Games which begin Aug. 26 if Rhodesia is allowed to participate.

Bob Rosburg, the 1959 PGA titlcholder, explained that, from a technical standpoint, the index finger is not very important in a golf swing, regardless of the grip used. Nickiaus uses an interlocking grip.

After his practice round vesterday on the 7054-yard, par-70 course, Nicklaus sald he had viewed photographs of himself recently showing that at the top of his backswing the index finger of his right hand often had been "loose or up in the air," thereby negating its importance in his swing. "I think Ben Hogan considers the index finger as one of the least important fingers in your swing, he sald. Nicklaus said his taped finger gave him no trouble. "I haven't made any adjustment in my grip and there is no soreness in it. My doctor was chiefly worried that the banging of the club Into the ground might irritate the funger, but it feels fine,"

When his wife, Joan, finally signaled Teddy that McGerera had chosen Tom Eagleton, Teody pulled into port and gave everyone his sotemn word that they would not have to sail with him ngain for the rest of the summer.

You can imagine the spot Teddy was in last week when the Eagleton furor was at lis light. and Teddy was once again heing discussed as the only candidate to be second man on the Demecratle ticket.

As soon as the news broke. Toddy ordered his sailboat ready and provisioned for a month. Theo he started rounding up his nieces and nephews. "Who wants to go sailing with CARACAS. Venezuela, Aug. 2 TAP) -The Colombian auth r Gabriel Garcia Marques has woo the Remulo Gallegos literary prize for his novel "Clen Años de Soledad." which was selected as the best of 165 works by wellknown authors.

The contest, sponsored by the Venezuelan Institute of Culture turn down the vice-presidential and the Arts, is held every nomination, but so far Teddy five years. The first prize is Kennedy admits he hasn't found

WASHINGTON -Whenever the their Uncle Teddy?" he shouted Democrats start searching in the Kennedy compound. The older kids ran and climbed up on the roofs. The younger ones hid under Ethel Kennedy's and Eunice Shriver's skirts. "You said we didn't have to go anymore," one of his nephews. Anthony Shriver, shouted from behind a chimner.

"How did I know the nominations weren't over?" Uncle Teady protested. "It wilt only be for 2 fer days, maybe a week at the

"Why do we have to go with you?" Christopher Kennedy askca from under his mother's skirt. "Because if you don't, it will look as ti I'm just going to sea to avoid accepting the vice-presidency. If I have my nieces and nephews along, it will look as if we planned the sail as a family holinay.

Ethe!, who was holding on to four of her children, asked, "Why den't you stay on shore? The press can't reach you if you hide ir. the house."

"It isn't the press I'm hiding our from. It's George McGovern. The only place he can't get to me is on the sailboar." Eunice Shriver said, "We gave

A Human Service Exchange for Everyone

PARIS (IHT).—The first trip to Paris is such a thrill toat it is hard for young Americans to accept that the French aren't as thrilled about it as they are. "I had a miserable time," recalls film director Joe Mankiewicz of his first days in Paris in the 20s. "I hated the French because they didn't love "I was very depressed that it wasn't what I'd expected." says Botor Robert Redford of the Paris he lived in in the '50s. "No one said hello."

And no one does, atll. In fact, the French don't even say hello to each other; the one improvement, if such it can be called, is that the French in Paris have realized they are as lonely as the Americans.

There are attempts to overcome this loneliness, the latest of which is Cootact Information, an international group founded by two Americans, 25year-old Cathy Mothon, who is married to B French youth named Bernard, and Jim Haynes, a restless member of the avant-garde, late of Coveot Garden and Edinburgh and now a teacher at the University of Vincennes outside Paris.

Contact Information is described as a human service exchange, 'It's an information center, not cold information like where can I buy sometining, but useful information on how to bring people together," says Cathy, a statwart bloode who worked in offices restaurants back home and in Paris taught English and gave out free samples of Gouda cheese,

The Idea

"I hao the idea for Contact Information because I didn't have any friends. Even being with Bernard I was lonely. I spoke to Jlm about it. Jim's very excited about persoual contact. Those young people in his classes—I'm not old, but they just sit there."

The idea is that contact is made through exchange of information. "We bare subjects like ecology, agriculture, blologr, soft technology. Soft technology is using windmills, et cctera, technology that doesn't ad for a shoulder to cry on, a discussion of Rousseau, a week's supply of beeswax or a street map of Dayton, Ohio?

'You couldn't ask in a classified take a lot of energy," says Cathy.

"You couldn't ask in a classified ad for a shoulder to cry on, a discussion of Rousseau, B week's supply of beeswax or B street map of Dayton, Ohio." Contact Information began last January in B back room of the Shakespeare and Company bookshop. It is now lodged in the basement of 74 Rue des Sts. Peres. premises it shares with Athanor, mother get-to-gether group that offers lowpriced evening meals and entertainment. Contact Information is open plghts from 7 p.m. There is no fee, but people who come to seek information must offer information in return. "Some people come in for a job. That they can come for something more than a job is what we call mind hlowing," says Cathy.

"It's not that everyone loves each other, but we are working together and listening to each other, which the French don't do, and learning to respect each

Contact Information has $22 in its kitty, the result of two fund-raising dinners, and its chief asset is an $8 wooden box jammed with 3x5 file cards listing offers and requests. "A box is stultifying to us," sighs Cathr. "We're thinking of having billboards."

The tidy headings in the box include Places World, Spiritual, Scx. Needs Diverse, and Freo

"We helped a girl who'd lost her prescription for birth control pills," says Cathy, turning by request to Needs Diverse. "Danish girl wants to meet French boy," she reads. "You name it. I might be interest-

Another Russian poet who has been hungry in Paris and London offers free lodgings and the gratuitous advice that Communism is alive only in Yugo-alevia and China. "'Un étudiant cherche une étudiante pour étudier la rie." Cathy reads out. "That's nice."

Caution

A certain amount of caution is recommended: "If someone wants to discuss Rousseau, don't invite him to your apartment at midnight. Meet him first in a café or another public place," says Cathy. The rami-fications of Contact Information are enormous, she says, and her own interests are already wandering; village because we're going to have a child soon. Another might be a weaving village where you could learn to weave. Another might be soft technol-

"I'm most interested now in creating a chain of villages.

Most often people who come in search of information think they have little to offer in return. In that case they are urged to offer information on their home towns or places they have visited in order to help other travelers. The Piaces World section has cards on Melbourne, Australia, most of the Arab countries Cambridge. Mass., Stockholm, Guinea and Hawaii, among nthers. Cathy and Bernard neve put in a card requesting information on Sherbrooke. Quebec, where they are going shortly for Bernard to do his French military service. No response yet.

The responsibility to make the contacts lies with the people themselves, we don't do it for them," says Cathy. "You have to learn you're responsible for

Realization

"It's not idealistic, but it's all tied in with trying to make people realize they have something to offer. You're not just a journalist with the Herald Tribune, you're a warm being with something to offer," she adds in kindly tones.

On soft journalism, perhaps? "All you have to do is go on the Metro and see all the loneliness." Cathy continues. 'Our building is bourgeois, it's in Bernard's family, I don't know anyone in it. My generation's always saying the older generation's uptight, my generation is just as uptight, but we're trying to get over it. We're slowly getting there."

Contact Information is emphatically open to all ages. "We must use the resources of old people," Cathy says. "They've lived 60 or 70 or 80 years and that's not worth something? That's a whole life, a whole richness.
"Why can't we make this available to everyone, not just students? After all," she points out, "students get old, too."

Roger Moore has been unveiled as the man who will play the new and third James Bond in the next three movies about the redoubtable British secret agen; 00%. The 42-year-old Moore and producers Albert Broccoli and Harry Saltzman voiced confidence he can fill the shoes of Sean Connery, who became worldfamous and finally rich in the James Bond role created by the late British author Ian Fleming. Connery played Bond in the first five movies in the series, Australian Harry Lazendy was Bond in the sixth film about 607, secret agent in the seventh. Moore will take over the Bond role in the eighth film. "Live and Let Die," on which shooting will begin Oct. 9 in New Orleans. Other portions of the $7 million picture will be shot in Jamaica, Harlem and B studio outside

Moore, who was unveiled as the new and third Bond at a reception Tuesday, said he hoped he could bring something new and personal to the role.

He declined to disclose his salary for playing in the next three Bond pictures, but acknowledged the contract was the most lucratire he has signed,

Dave Schwarts basn't lound the "Alluquerque Girl" he sought by spending $1,500 for advertisements on southern California buses. But he has found: a man who offered his former wife. Ten fake "Ai-buquerque Girls." A dozen men who went to manage him. And a songwriter who wants to celebrate him in verse. Schwartz, a former University of Michigan student, spent all his savings for advertising in an attempt to find a girl he met briefly in the Los. Angeles suburb of Venice, but whose name he doesn't know. "All. I can remember is that she was skinny and from Albuquerque," Schwartz said.
